

Arcus Fund SICAV

Summary of Investor Rights

Capitalised terms used have the same meaning given to them in the prospectus of the Arcus Fund SICAV (the “Prospectus”).

Shareholder Rights

If you are a Shareholder in the any Sub-Fund of the Company and these Shares are registered in your name on the relevant Shareholder register, you will have certain Shareholder rights which you can exercise. This may include rights to dividends declared by the Management Company or to a proportion of net proceeds on the liquidation of the Company. More details on Shareholder rights are set out in the Prospectus and for the Articles of Incorporation of the Company.

Investor Rights under your Contract with the Company

As an investor in the Company, and depending on how you invested, you may have certain investor rights arising under contract between yourself and the Company.

For further details on these rights, please refer in particular to the Prospectus and to the contractual documentation which you completed in order to make your investment in the Company.

Additional Investor Rights Arising from Local Laws

Depending on how you invested in the Company, you may be entitled to avail of certain domestic protections and rights to compensation claims deriving from your local legislation. For further details on such rights please refer to your local investor compensation website, if available.

Collective Redress

In the event you perceive you have suffered a loss, you may have a right to seek redress on a collective basis through a collective redress mechanism which has been made available in your local jurisdiction. The availability of access to a local collective redress mechanism will depend on the jurisdiction you are based in, and the location of the contract formed with the Company and how you invested in the Company. For further details on such rights please refer to the website of your local regulator.

The European Union has introduced legislation to support the ability for consumers to take representative action across the EU. This piece of legislation is due to be implemented into local law by the end of December 2022 and we will update this summary with further rights as they arise in due course.
