Report from the Investment Manager

CARNEGIE Fonder Portfolio - CARNEGIE Strategy Fund (feeder fund)

Fund performance

Although asset prices at the beginning of the year were generally considered high, corporate profit outlooks and the low level of inflation suggested that securities markets would be relatively stable in 2020. Any concerns were mainly associated with the US-China trade war.

Both the equity markets and the corporate bond markets started the year strongly, but once the Covid-19 virus gained a foothold around the world they fell quickly and sharply in March. However, both central banks and governments responded with comprehensive measures to minimise the economic damage. This, combined with a gradual stabilisation of the spread of infection, meant that investors chose to look ahead and focus on the power of the economic recovery once the effects of the pandemic subside.

During the second half of the year, many company reports offered positive surprises, and this combined with positive news about vaccine development to further improve the levels of optimism, mainly in the more cyclical sectors.

The US presidential election was, of course, the focus in late autumn. Although the election, which did not receive an early formal decision, was in line with most expectations, the capital markets still reacted positively overall. A second virus wave in the winter certainly dampened the stock market mood in December, but the rise for the Stockholm stock exchange (SIX RX) for the full year was still 14.80 percent.

The corporate bond markets, which should normally perform better than the stock markets in times of crisis, were hit by an acute lack of liquidity in connection with the market turbulence at the beginning of the year, and also fell. However, the liquidity situation prompted central banks to take remedial action, and bond prices generally recovered during the second half.

As the Sub-Fund mainly focuses on investments in securities that provide stable and high direct returns, it has been negatively affected by the general cancellation of company dividends, intended to avoid being excluded from government support measures.

Despite the different and, in many respects, negative conditions, the Sub-Fund rose by 6.4 percent during the year. Holmen, Epiroc, Investor, Kinnevik, Lifco, Dometic and SCA are among the holdings that particularly contributed with a positive return. Forest companies are probably perceived as relatively defensive investments, with large forest assets whose value is not affected by short-term fluctuations in the economy. Lifco and Dometic fell more than the market initially, but at the end of the year clawed back their entire losses and more.

Shares that contributed negatively included Atrium Ljungberg, Bonava, Duni and Securitas. In the cases of Atrium Ljungberg and Duni, it was concerns about retail and the hotel and restaurant industry that had a negative effect. There was some recovery in these shares during the latter part of the year. The Sub-Fund's holdings of corporate bonds contributed a marginally positive return after the initial decline caused by the previously mentioned difficult liquidity situation.

Net flows during the period amounted to SEK -69.9 million. Assets under management amounted to SEK 410 million as of December 31, 2020.

Fund management

CARNEGIE Strategy Fund is a feeder fund of Carnegie Strategifond and thus invests its assets only in Carnegie Strategifond. In short, the investment focus for Carnegie Strategifond is to invest its assets in securities issued by Nordic companies that provide high direct returns. The direct return can consist of either a dividend or interest coupons on bonds. The starting point for the Sub-Fund management is that the equities component should over time amount to approximately 50 percent. During 2020, the equities component varied between just over 50 percent and just over 60 percent due to both changes in value and active decisions.

The Sub-Fund has invested in some new shareholdings, including Telia and SSAB. Telia has been included in the portfolio before but was divested as the previous management did not take sufficient measures to focus and structure the business. A lower valuation and a new management and board means that the share again appears to be interesting. The core business in Sweden/the Nordics has over time shown stable earnings, although a lower cost base could further boost profitability. But the most important thing is that the sprawling geographical structure, which lacks clear synergies, is now being remedied, and with the divestment of the stake in Turkcell the company will be more clearly exposed to the Nordic markets.

To a large extent, Telia's problems have not been about earnings but rather the constant pursuit of expansion and dubious new investments. With the new management, there is reason for optimism about a strategy change with a clear focus on profitability and the core business rather than expansion. The incoming CEO, Allison Kirkby, and the Chairman, Lars-Johan Jarnheimer, both have a background from Tele2 with good reputations. In the prevailing environment, there should be a strong demand for companies with stable cash flows and dividends.

SSAB has a very far-reaching goal for sustainable production, and if successful this should be able to give the company significant competitive advantages. Previously, the financial risk in the company was relatively high given its debt levels, but after a completed recapitalisation the proportion of debt in relation to equity is down to just under 20 percent. The virus outbreak and closed borders have led to delivery troubles for many companies, and difficulty in maintaining production. One consequence could be that companies review their production structure in the future and choose to increase their investments. Such a scenario would increase demand for SSAB's products.

Bank shares Swedbank and Handelsbanken were sold during the spring to finance increased liquidity and small investments in bank bonds. During the latter part of the year, however, the Sub-Fund invested in Nordea and SEB. In Nordea's case, the investment was made in connection with Sampo choosing to reduce its ownership in the company and placing shares at a discount in relation to the prevailing market price. Banks generally performed weakly relative to other sectors during the year. A return to more normal circumstances suggests a revaluation. With a dividend yield of 5-6 percent, the valuation appears attractive to buyers.

The Sub-Fund invested in bank bonds, known as AT1s, in connection with large price falls during the spring. For example, a Handelsbanken bond was purchased at a yield of around 15 percent. The Sub-Fund now owns bonds in Handelsbanken, SEB and DNB, but given the strong price recovery bank shares now appear to be more attractive, so the bonds will probably be either redeemed or gradually reduced. Bond investments were also made in Verisure, Industrivärden, FastPartner and Link Mobility. These investments were financed through a redemption of the holding in Bergvik Skog and divestment of the holdings in B2 Holding and Garfunkel.

Derivatives trading etc

Carnegie Strategifond traded in derivatives during the year. The Sub-Fund may purchase securities in foreign currency. To protect Swedish fund unitholders against currency movements in bond holdings, the Sub-Fund hedges its bonds with currency futures. The commitment approach is used as the risk assessment method to calculate the total exposures in the Sub-Fund. The Swedish Krona's movements against other currencies have not had any major impact on the Sub-Fund's unit value. There was no collateral pledged as of December 31 and collateral received amounted to SEK 83 million. The Sub-Fund CARNEGIE Strategy Fund invested also in forward foreign exchange contracts during the year.

Securities holdings

CARNEGIE Strategy Fund is a Sub-Fund that invests in Carnegie Strategifond. As of December 31, CARNEGIE Strategy Fund was 99.22 percent invested in Carnegie Strategifond. The remaining 0.78 percent consisted of cash, other assets and liabilities.

Outlook

As previously, our view is that a portfolio of corporate bonds and stable shares that pay good dividends creates good conditions for solid long-term value growth at relatively low risk. The historically high valuation of relatively safe fixed-income securities means that the more than half of the Sub-Fund will probably for the time being consist of shares, supplemented primarily with high-yield bonds.

The pandemic of course means increased uncertainty about economic development, even though the markets now seem to assume that the negative economic consequences will be limited in the longer term. However, this presupposes successful vaccination programmes. Any significant setbacks in that process are likely to have short-term negative repercussions for the markets and the Sub-Fund. The valuation of risk assets such as equities and high-yield bonds is historically high, although the Nordic markets appear attractive in an international perspective. Expectations for the Sub-Fund should therefore be set lower than the 9 percent annual return it has generated over the past decade.

Sustainability

The Sub-Fund regards sustainability as a critical part of its management and, as in previous years, held multiple company meetings and discussions where sustainability issues were raised. We held meetings and had dialogues with companies including Volvo, Heimstaden, SSAB, Lifco, Bulk Infrastructure and FastPartner to discuss, follow up and investigate their work with sustainability.

Questions concerning Volvo's way of reporting its environmental impact led to a dialogue with the company that resulted in satisfactory responses. Representatives of the Sub-Fund also participated in meetings with Volvo with a focus on corporate governance issues. Heimstaden got its first independent board member through the appointment of Casper Von Koskull as Chairman last spring, something we have been requesting for a long time.

SSAB is a new holding, and its focus on developing sustainable products and production was a strong factor in the investment decision. SSAB has a strategic plan to revolutionise iron and steel production and become the first steel company in the world to market iron ore-based fossil-free steel in 2026. During the autumn, SSAB announced an interest in acquiring Dutch steel manufacturer IJmuiden. The Sub-Fund contacted SSAB with specific questions regarding how a possible acquisition of Ijmuiden would affect the company's sustainability and, in particular, what would be the environmental consequences. If the acquisition is completed, there will be reason to review the conditions for the Sub-Fund's continued investment in SSAB, partly for sustainability reasons and partly for fundamental financial reasons.

The Sub-Fund has not excluded any holdings due to sustainability analysis. Our analysis suggests that the companies we invest in, such as Holmen, Volvo, ABB, Epiroc and FastPartner, take sustainability issues very seriously and that this work creates opportunities to gain market share by offering more environmentally friendly products.

As an example, Holmen is investigating the possibility of investing just over SEK 1 billion in wind power in the coming years. The forestry company already absorbs more carbon dioxide than it emits, and any investment would mean a further reduction in its dependence on fossil fuels. Since 2005, Holmen has reduced its use of fossil fuels by 87 percent (2019), and its goal is to reach 90 percent by 2020.

ABB has far-reaching goals for sustainability, with a special focus on three areas: responsible relationships, responsible operations and leading technology. The goal for leading technology is that by 2020, 60 percent of sales will come from the company's eco-efficiency portfolio (58 percent in 2019). An example of products in the portfolio is one of ABB's own manufacturing units in Germany, where an intelligent software technology called OPTIMAX controls energy management. Solar cells have been installed that cover the entire plant's energy needs on sunny days, and the plant saves 630 tonnes of carbon dioxide annually.

Another example is mining and infrastructure equipment company Epiroc, which has decided on new sustainability goals for 2030. Its aim is the halve carbon dioxide emissions from its operations, transport and relevant suppliers, as well as from customers' use of Epiroc equipment. It also aims to double the number of women in operational roles. FastPartner's sustainability goal is to become climate neutral by 2030.

On the bond side, the Sub-Fund has teamed with another fund management company to develop a specification for the sustainability ambitions and reporting of issuing companies. This has been well received by the companies and has led to improved transparency and a better ability to evaluate the companies when public information may otherwise be scarce for Nordic companies in the high-yield segment.

The Sub-Fund was represented on the nomination committees for the holdings in Holmen, NCC, Duni, Lifco, Atrium Ljungberg and Elanders. Our general attitude in our nomination committee work is that we strive for diversified boards consisting of directors with strong integrity.

Market Development

COVID – 2020 was a year we won't forget soon. At the beginning of the year, global financial markets reached record levels following an upward trend for many years, and although there were moments of concern, such as Brexit and the trade war between the USA and China, the risk appetite was strong. Following news that the spread of the virus would extend beyond China and risk develope into a pandemic, it dominated all media. Global stock markets as well as credit markets saw the sharpest falls since the Great Depression when investors sold risk assets widely. Towards the end of March/early April, sentiment reached rock bottom before central banks and governments declared ready once again to do "whatever it takes".

What we have experienced since then is an unprecedented recovery, driven by enormous stimulus packages, monetary and fiscal policy measures, and a strong belief that the effects of the virus are finite. The impact on companies' results has been mixed, and some industries have been hit hard, particularly hotels, travel and retail. On the other hand, there are industries that have been Covid-19 winners, such as gambling/gaming companies and digital trading, while the vast majority of companies have experienced a limited impact so far.

The credit quality in the Nordic market differs between companies and industries, but in general we believe companies are showing resilience through a stable development in spite of the year's volatility. Moreover, the credit margins are still attractive compared to the rest of Europe, where the central bank's purchasing is significantly more aggressive, which has brought the credit margins to artificially low levels.

Fund Management

The beginning of the year was strong, and although there were some geopolitical concerns, many companies enjoyed a positive profitability trend. Then came March, and more or less all parts of the portfolio were severely affected by a liquidity-driven market development where investors opted for the security of cash rather than carry. Initially, we adjusted the portfolio to focus on liquidity and the actual effects of the virus on individual holdings, and we divested companies that had been badly impacted by the virus and its effects. Pandemic losers such as Hurtigruten, Selecta and Cabonline were sold off in favour of high-quality IG credits like Atlas Copco, Volvo and Autoliv, where the price had dropped by almost 10 per cent in spite of the net cash or low level of indebtedness/low operational risk. A similar trend was observed in real estate credits, regardless of whether companies owned retail or residential properties, and we chose to purchase longer senior credits in names such as Balder, Akelius and Castellum. These names were also the first to be greeted by the recovery as in many cases investors realised that the reaction was exaggerated. The compression in the credit margin for the sector has been significant since then, and fuelled further by the central banks' ongoing pandemic purchase programme, which will continue to characterise the development going forward.

The recovery for Nordic high yield has been slower than its global ditto, which continues to make the sector attractive looking ahead. Initially, it was flow-driven, which means the appetite for high yield was greater in Europe than in the Nordic region, but in the final months of the year the driving factor was the Nordic wave of new issues without any "new" money entering the market, which meant that credit spreads remained attractive. It was not until after companies released figures for the second and third quarters that the risk appetite increased for high-yield names as well, when it was clear that they had coped with the pandemic well. Strong risk sentiment and positive corporate news from Garfunkel and Axactor, both of whom implemented refinancing at the same time as the owners made large equity injections to support the growth, contributed to the upswing during late autumn.

Despite a strong recovery from the bottom levels in March, the Sub-Fund's performance amounted to -1.36 for the year. The net flow during the year increased to -2.1 billion and the Sub-Fund assets as at the end of the year were 17.5 billion.

Sustainability

The Sub-Fund integrates sustainability into the management process and ongoing dialogue with companies. Although some companies are excluded on the basis of negative screening, the basic approach is to encourage companies to actively engage in dialogue on the impact of sustainability. This is to give the companies the chance and opportunity to develop and, in the long term, enable them to become the best in class.

The result of two lengthy dialogues has borne fruit during the year. Through the addition of Casper Von Koskull (chairman) last spring, Heimstaden got its first independent board member, something we have been requesting for a long time and regard as important in a well-managed company. Fastpartner presented new targets on their capital markets day, in particular ambitious sustainability targets, which generally require the company to commit to reach climate neutrality by 2030.

Green bonds continue to be an attractive asset class in which we continue to invest in. The proportion of green bonds now amounts to around 13 per cent. An example of new investment in green bonds is Momox. The company has developed and operates a proprietary digital platform to buy and sell used literature and some ready-to-wear clothing. The business model is estimated to save 65,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide a year, compared with the life cycle impact of new products.

Derivatives trading

The Sub-Fund has been trading in derivatives during the period. Cash provided as at 31 December amounted to SEK 241.2 million and cash received came to SEK 251.9 million. In order to calculate the total exposures in the Sub-Fund, the commitment method has been used as the risk assessment method.

Future outlook

The pandemic continues to create a lot of uncertainty, and although we have seen a strong recovery, the credit margins in several sectors still remain at attractive levels. A balanced and diversified portfolio, with a focus on liquidity, enables us to maintain our conservative approach. We continue to focus on sustainable companies, which we are convinced will contribute to long-term profitability.

CARNEGIE Fonder Portfolio - CARNEGIE High Yield Select

Market Development

Market performance during 2020 turned out to be extremely volatile, mainly due to Covid-19. Initially, the hope was that the spread of the virus could be isolated to China, but when it became clear that it had developed into a pandemic, the capital markets reacted strongly. Concern for the actual economic consequences and a collapse of the oil price resulted in a meltdown of global credit markets, with sharp falls in prices as a consequence of the widespread sale of risk assets by investors. Although, in retrospect, the effects were milder than feared, the central banks were required to take a "whatever it takes" approach once again, combined with positive vaccination news before the capital markets fully regained their appetite for risk. The initial recovery was enjoyed predominantly by companies with higher credit ratings and credits included in the central banks' pruchase programmes, but with time investors were forced further down the risk scale. This, combined with strong reports for the second and third quarters, has also driven the recovery within Nordic high yield. Although the year's development may generally be summarised as being V-shaped, we maintain the image of the Sub-Fund's niche, Nordic high yield, is an attractive sector, both from a historical perspective and in comparison with other asset classes.

Fund Management

Large parts of the global financial markets have recovered from the decline last spring, but an attractive premium within Nordic high yield still remains. The slower recovery for Nordic high yield is due in part to limited flows but also to the fact that the new issues market returned in full swing at the end of the year, i.e. just as in March/April, the short-term price development is defined by supply and demand, but over a longer period by the underlying yield in the portfolio. The reports for the second quarter came at the end of August and only then was it possible to make an assessment of how companies had coped with the crisis, i.e. whether the returns were deferred or the credit risk was hightened. This has created interesting investment opportunities in the secondary market, not least for shorter credits, where there is a limited period until maturity and hence a palpable increasing pull-to-par effect.

The focus was initially on liquidity and the actual effects of the virus on individual holdings, whereby we divested companies with an imminent high Covid-19 risk such as Selecta and Cabonline, in favour of more virus-resistant names like Azerion and CentralNic. With heightened uncertainty and relatively asymetrical information, we preferred short credit duration and took advantage of opportunities to increase the exposure in Gefion, Catena Media and Aspire Global, among others, when we felt that the price was unjustifiably low in relation to the short time remaining to maturity. Gefion redeemed their bond in late autumn, which gave us a 6 per cent price increase in just four months. A clear trend is investor appetite for technology-related companies and the importance of digitisation in existing industries. The portfolio's emphasis on technology-related companies was increased when the primary market was allowed to open after the summer and we invested in companies like Mercell and Desenio. Mercell has developed and operates a digital portal for public procurements, and Desenio develops, produces and sells affordable art digitally, and both have an attractive business model which is becoming increasingly up-to-date, and investor appetite for the sector is strong.

The majority of the portfolio has recovered from the fall last spring, but we observe that there is still some underperformance embedded in the current yield. With short credit binding, it is also possible to estimate when this performance should be normalised. In isolation, the performance for 2020 is behind target, we should realise the performance over time, where the individual companies' development is most tangiable. The Sub-Fund finished the year on an upswing of 1.81 per cent with a net flow of -182.4 million, which summarises the capital managed as of the end of December at SEK 889 million.

Sustainability

There is still a large focus on ESG and more impact dialogues, an initiative for a sustainable HY market and a growing number of companies discovering the advantages of green financing. An example of new investment in green bonds is Momox. The company has developed and operates a proprietary digital platform to buy and sell used literature and some ready-to-wear clothing. The business model is estimated to save 65,000 tonnes of carbon dioxide a year, compared with the life cycle impact of new products. On the subject of attractive investments, Aker announced, as part of its investment in green energy, that they intend to acquire East Renewable, something which shows how attractive the sector is for well established as well as new actors. Regular checks are carried out in the form of both negative and positive screening, which, depending on the outcome, enables us to opt for or out of the worst or the best in class.

Derivatives trading

The Sub-Fund has been trading in derivatives during the period. Cash provided as at 31 December amounted to SEK 12.9 million and cash received came to SEK 13.8 million. In order to calculate the total exposures in the Sub-Fund, the commitment method has been used as the risk assessment method.

Future outlook

We try to balance the attractive returns potential with flows in the market, the impact of central bank support, combined with the effects of the increased/reduced spread of the coronavirus. In general, we are defensive, but will be opportunistic when the occasion arises, although our focus is always on good companies. Following the advance of the coronavirus, the emphasis of the selection of companies is becoming increasingly clear, and the development for the respective companies is that which is the most important for the Sub-Fund's development in the longer term, even though the Sub-Fund is not immune to short-term price fluctuations.

Note 12 - Tax refund

The Company has instigated proceedings to reclaim tax withheld by certain Member States of the European Union on dividend payments it has received. The decision to initiate proceedings against any particular Member State is the result of an analysis of the likely costs and potential benefits of doing so. The likelihood of successfully reclaiming such amounts together with the estimated time to complete proceedings varies across Member States.

In 2016 a tax reclaim in Finland was done for CARNEGIE Fonder Portfolio - CARNEGIE Strategy Fund (feeder fund), so far no success was granted but the Sub-Fund awaits feedback in the next coming years. As such, amounts will be recorded, where applicable, on a cash basis under the caption "Other Income".

Note 13 - Total Expense Ratio ("TER")

The TER disclosed under "Statistical information" of this report is calculated in accordance with the "Guidelines on the calculation and disclosure of the TER of collective investment schemes" issued by the Swiss Funds & Asset Management Association "SFAMA" on 16th May 2008 and modified on 20th April 2015.

The Asset Management Platform "AMP" Switzerland and the Swiss Funds & Asset Management Association "SFAMA" merged in autumn 2020 to form the Asset Management Association Switzerland.

The TER is calculated for the last 12 months preceding the date of the financial statements.

Transaction fees are not taken into account in the calculation of the TER.

If a fund invests at least 10% of its assets in other funds which publish a TER, a synthetic TER of the fund of funds is calculated as of the closing date of the financial year or the end of the first half of the financial year. This corresponds to the sum of the prorated TER of the individual target fund, weighted on the basis of their proportion in the net fund assets of the fund as the closing date, the issue and redemption commissions of the target funds actually paid and the TER of the fund of funds minus the retrocessions received from the target funds during the reporting period. The synthetic TER is calculated with the information available at the time of the establishment of this document.

If a performance-related fee is foreseen and has been calculated, the TER is disclosed including this fee. Moreover the performance fee ratio is calculated in percentage of the average net assets for the last 12 months preceding indicated reference date.
